

About GPECC

The Greater Philadelphia Executive Claims Council (GPECC) is a regional and collaborative claims, risk, and insurance industry think tank whose mission is to provide a venue where professionals can share best practices, address problems with creative solutions based on personal experiences, and serve as an educational resource within the claims and risk management field, focusing primarily on the specialty field of claims. GPECC will provide a strong voice within the industry to positively impact legislative and regulatory matters that affect our member firms, and will maintain a positive force in our community, particularly to those individuals or families economically impacted by a commercial claim.
